

Suicide Deaths Among Not in Workforce Individuals in Nebraska

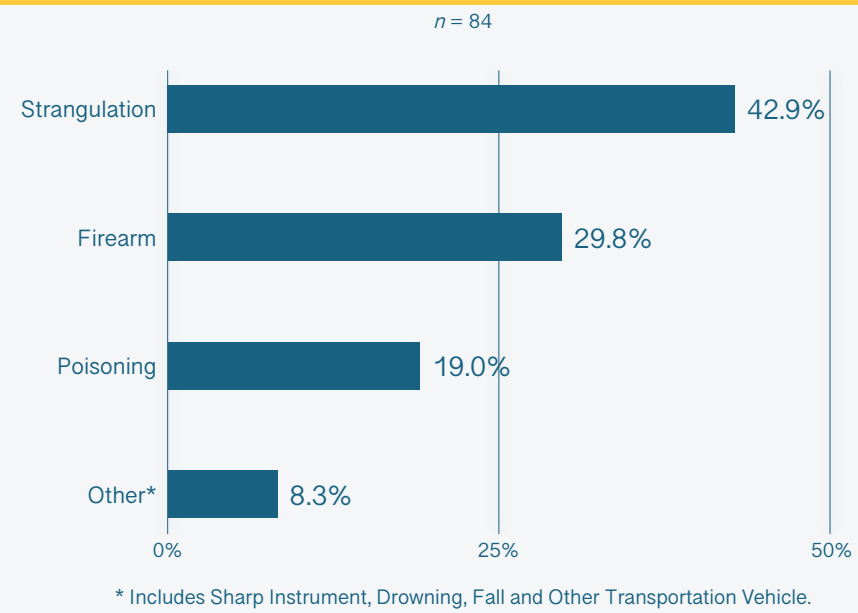

84 Total Deaths (2.1 per 100,000 Population)

Demographic Information

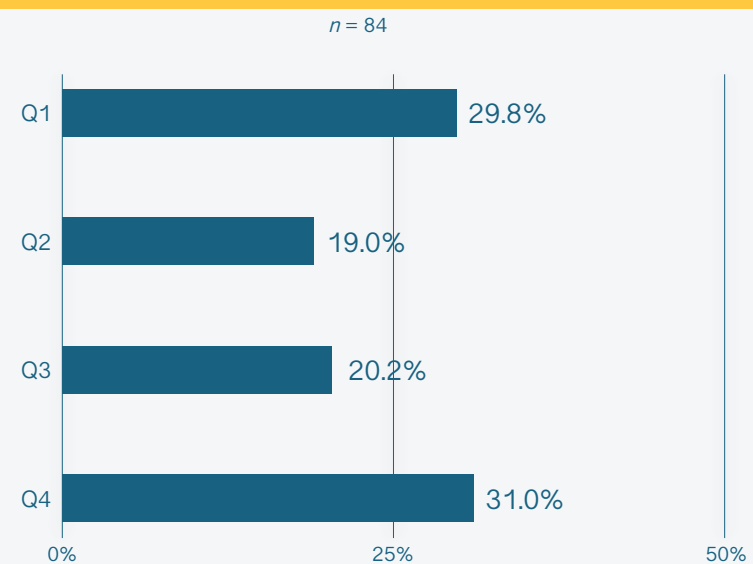

In 2020 and 2021, young white males, not in the workforce, with less than a high school education, often under 20 years old, tragically lost their lives most frequently to suicide by strangulation. Black Non-Hispanic males in Nebraska were disproportionately affected by suicide during this time period.

Cause of Death

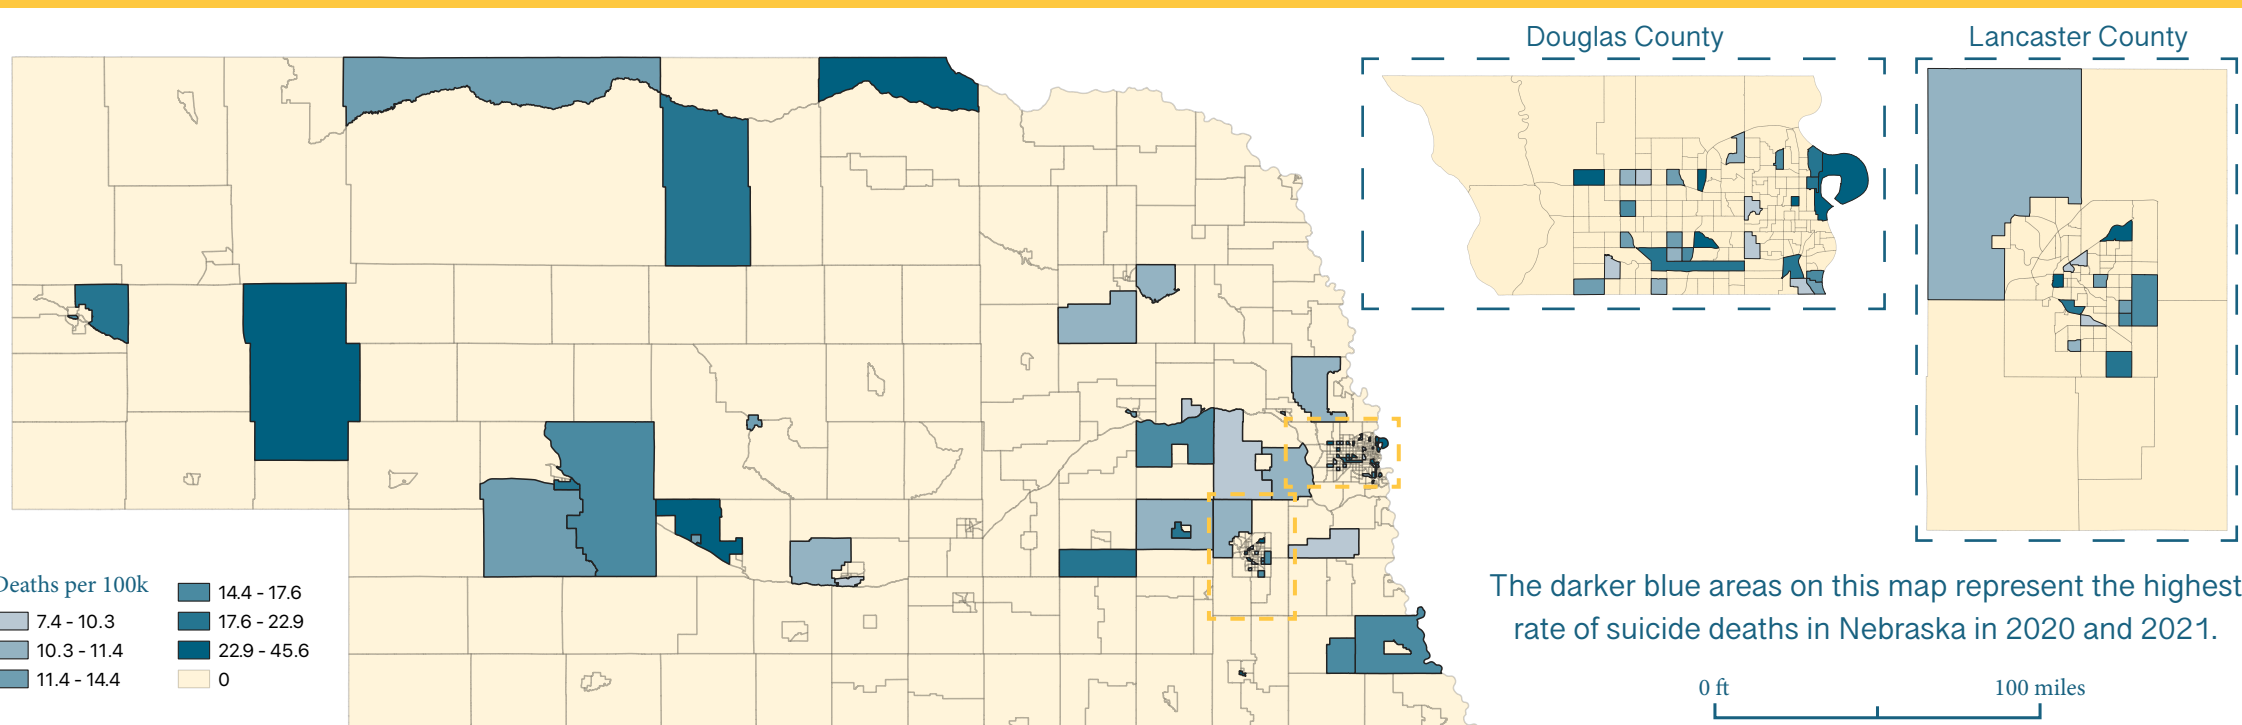

In the fourth quarter of 2020 and 2021, suicide victims among those not in the workforce in Nebraska, strangulation emerged as the predominant method, with the majority of victims choosing this means. The average age for those who died by strangulation suicide was 21.5, whereas firearm incidents occurred at an average age of 24. Notably, females tended to use poisoning methods, while the majority of males opted for strangulation.

Suicide Deaths by Month

In 2020 and 2021, approximately 31.0% of suicides among those not in the workforce in Nebraska occurred in the fourth quarter. The months of January, February, October, and December saw the highest number of suicides, accounting for 42.8% of the total. During the fourth quarter, the majority of individuals who died by suicide were white males, with an average age of 30 and holding less than a high school degree.

Suicide Death Rate by Census Tracts

Suicide Deaths Among Construction Sector Workers in Nebraska

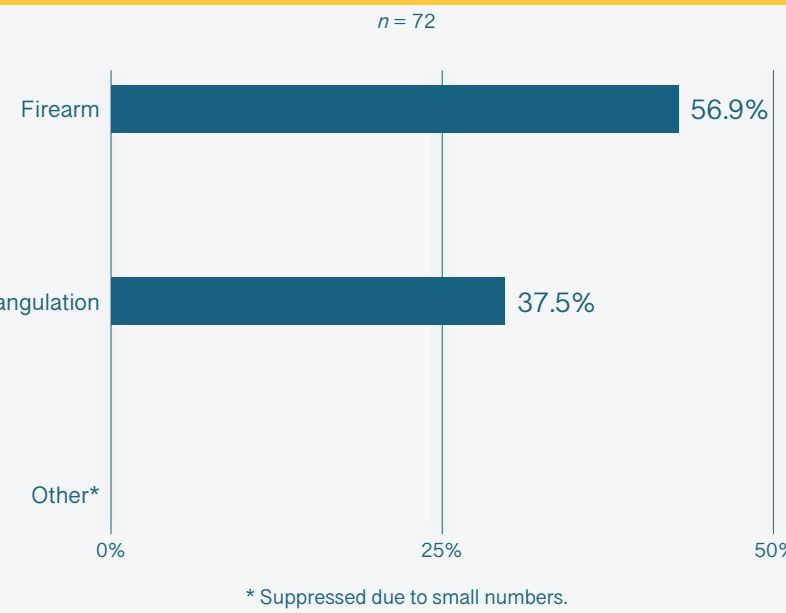

72 Total Deaths (1.8 per 100,000 Population)

Demographic Information

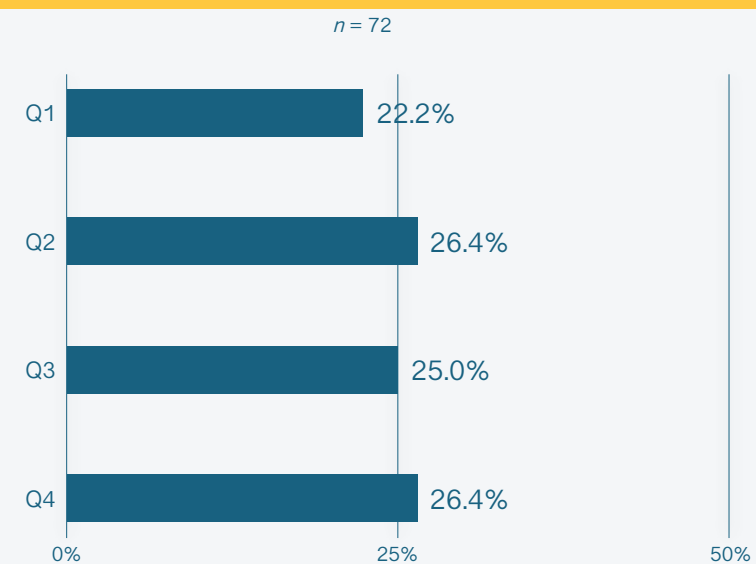

In 2020 and 2021, white males in the construction sector, aged between 30 and 39 years old, and possessing at least a high school degree, tragically lost their lives most frequently to suicide. White Non-Hispanic males in Nebraska were disproportionately affected by suicide during this time period.

Cause of Death

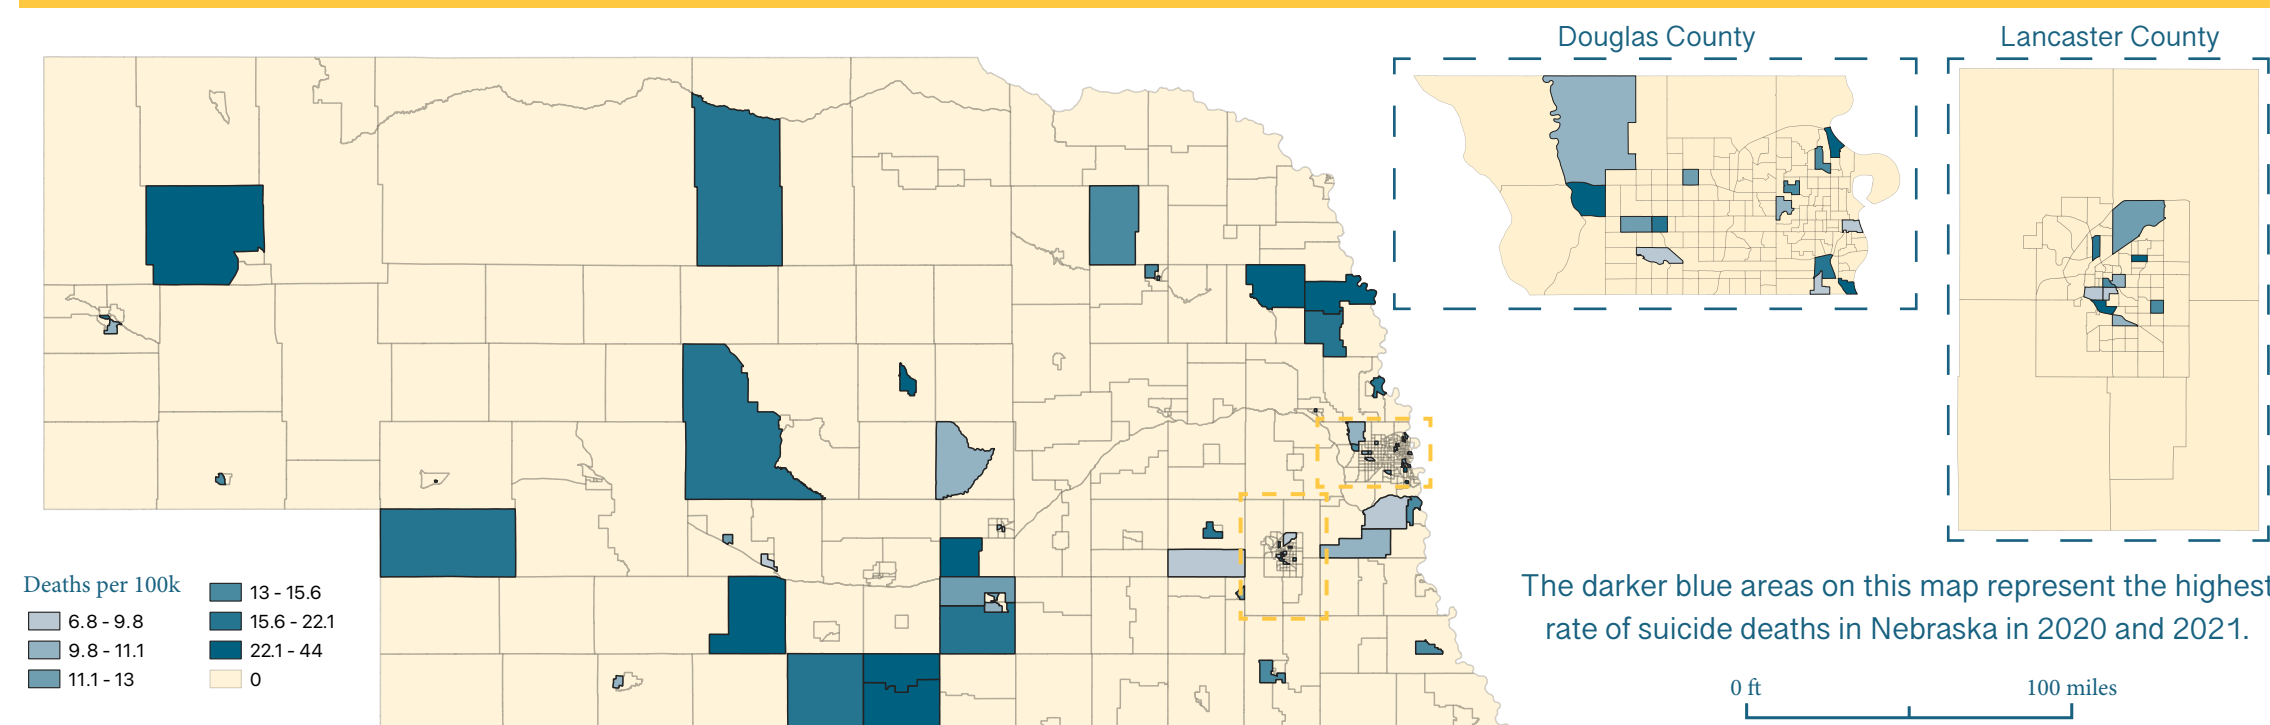

In the fourth quarter of 2020 and 2021, among suicide victims in the construction sector in Nebraska, firearms emerged as the predominant method, with the majority of victims choosing this means. The average age for those who died by firearm suicide was 48, whereas strangulation suicide incidents occurred at an average age of 37.

Suicide Deaths by Month

In 2020 and 2021, approximately 52.8% of suicides among those in the construction sector in Nebraska occurred in the second and fourth quarters. The month of October saw the highest number of suicides, accounting for 12.5% of the total. During the second and fourth quarters, the majority of individuals who died by suicide were white males, with an average age of 40 and holding at least a high school degree.

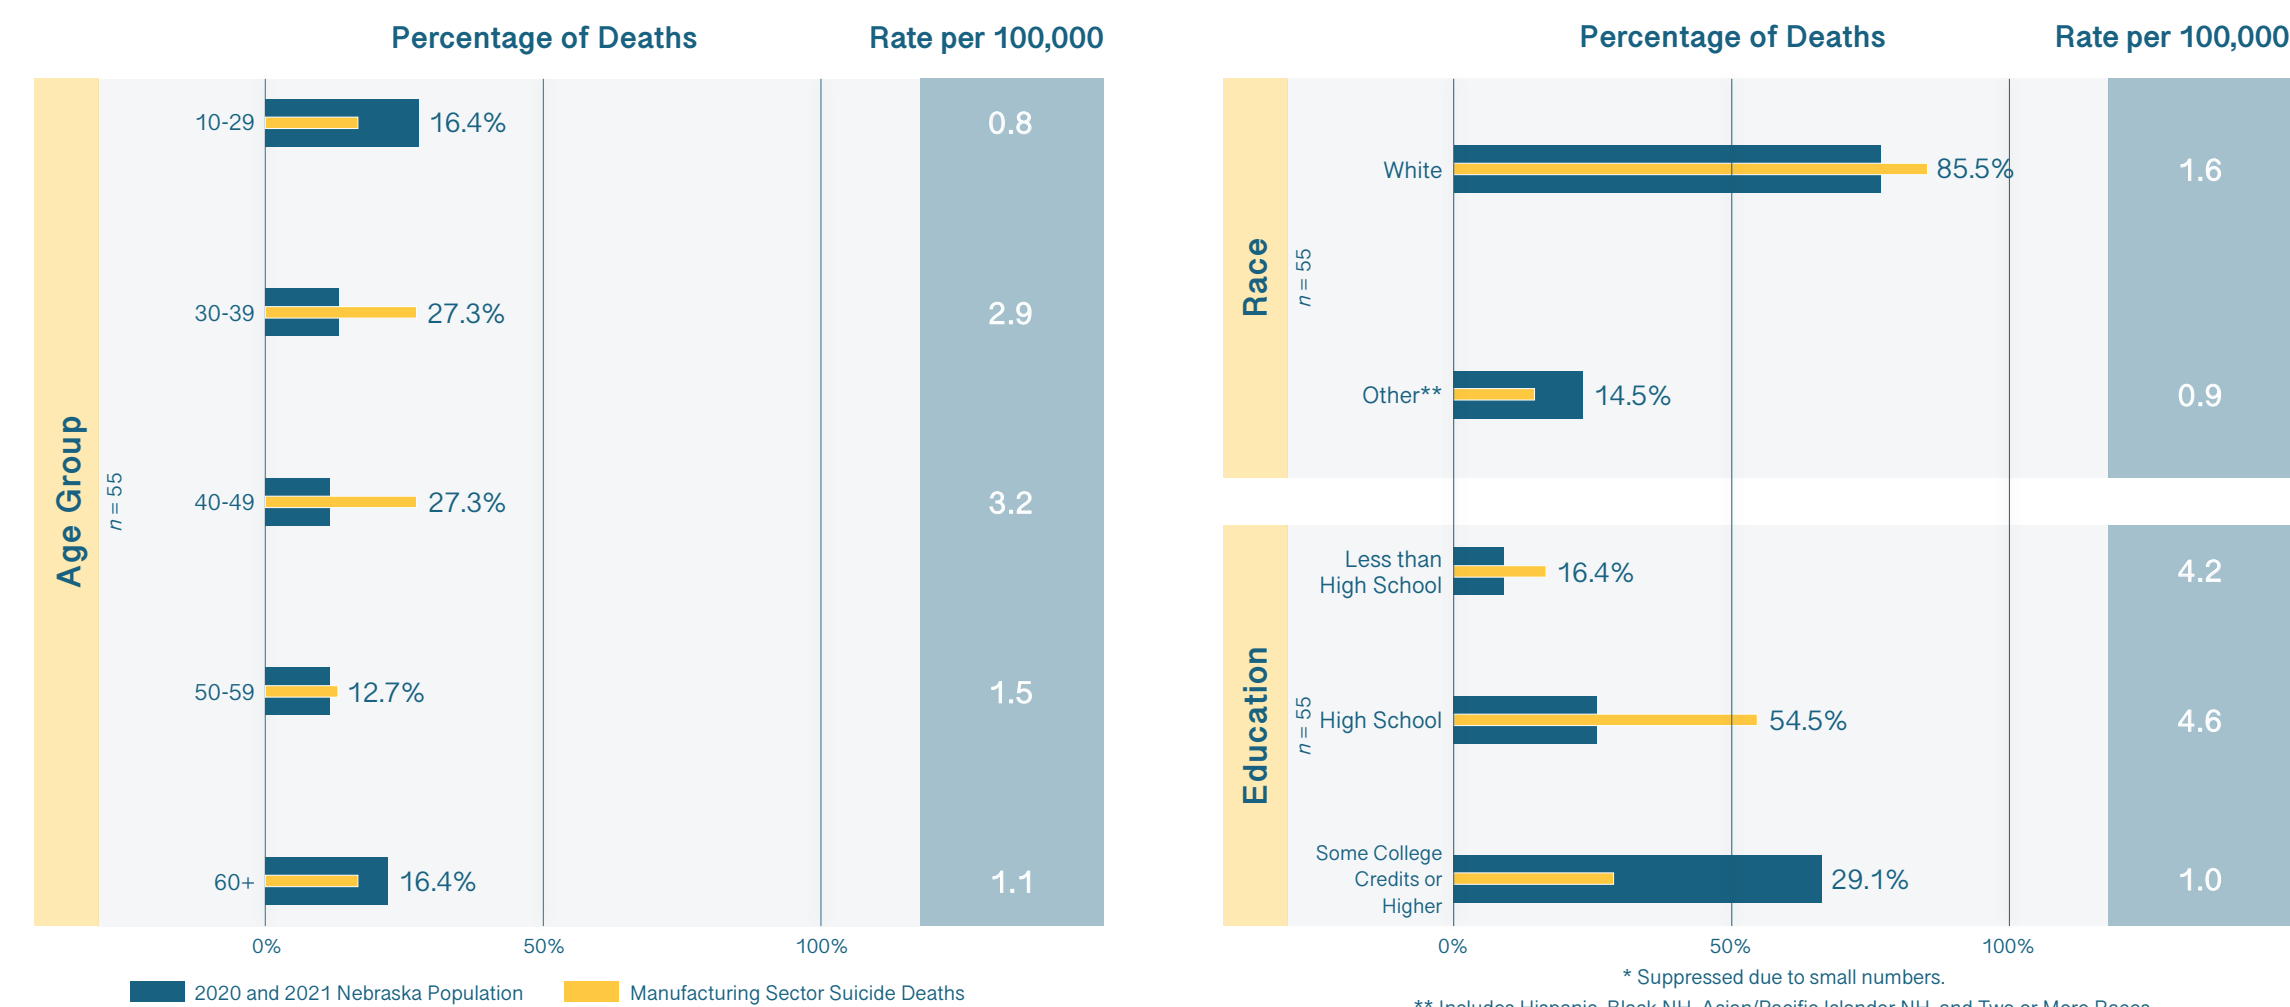

Suicide Death Rate by Census Tracts

Suicide Deaths Among Manufacturing Sector Workers in Nebraska

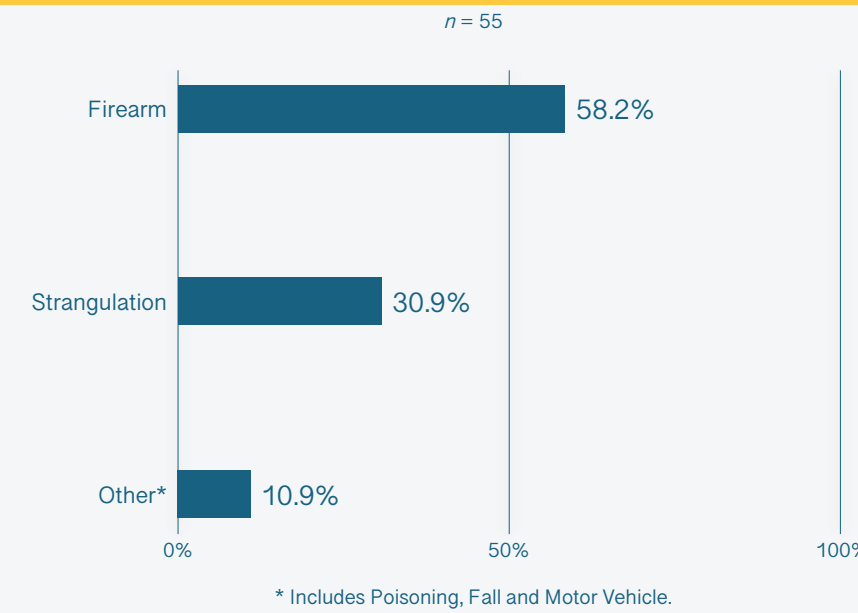

55 Total Deaths (1.4 per 100,000 Population)

Demographic Information

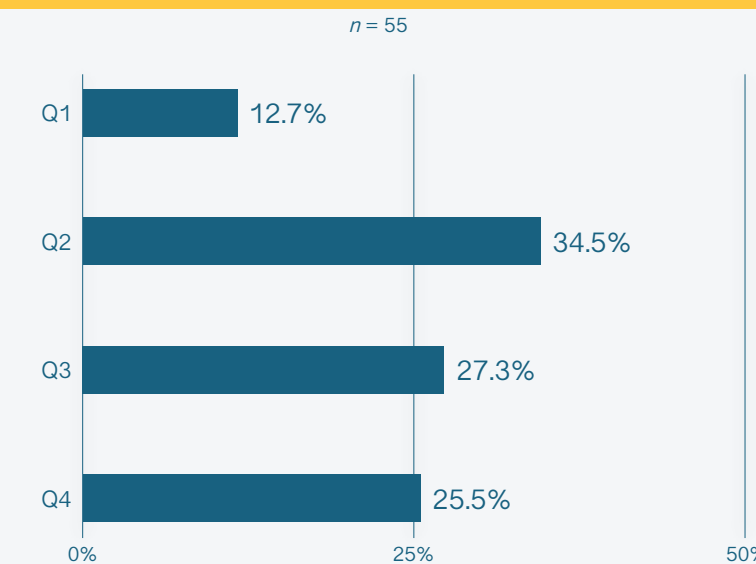

In Nebraska during 2020 and 2021, white males in the manufacturing sector, aged 30-49 with a high school education, had the highest suicide rates. Asian/Pacific Islander Non-Hispanic males were disproportionately affected by suicide during this time period.

Cause of Death

In the fourth quarter of 2020 and 2021, among suicide victims in the manufacturing sector in Nebraska, firearms emerged as the predominant method, with the majority of victims choosing this means. The average age for those who died by firearm suicide was 47.5, whereas incidents of strangulation suicide occurred at an average age of 39.5.

Suicide Deaths by Month

In 2020 and 2021, approximately 34.5% of suicides among those in the manufacturing sector in Nebraska occurred in the second quarter. The month of April saw the highest number of suicides, accounting for 16.4% of the total. During the second quarter, the majority of individuals who died by suicide were white males, with an average age of 44 and holding at least a high school degree.

Suicide Death Rate by Census Tracts

